
Energy Master Plan

The more you know, the more you save.

You know there are opportunities to save money, and you know that the faster you act on them, the faster you start saving.

Knowing what to do and where to find help is the hard part.

The Office of Energy Efficiency has a workshop that pulls it all together for you. Learn from the energy leaders. Our experience has helped over 1,300 organizations.

We'll show you how to get support and identify cost-saving opportunities in many places you might not have considered.

Find out how to:

- Assemble an energy management team;
- Identify and capitalize on immediate savings opportunities;
- Take advantage of financial and insurance options;
- Develop cost-saving energy management solutions;
- Make your organization a leader in energy efficiency;
- Enhance your organization's reputation in your industry and the community;
...and much more !

Who should attend this workshop?

- Participants in the "Spot the Energy Savings Opportunities" and "Energy Monitoring and Tracking" workshops
- Specialized staff who make energy-related decisions within your organization:
 - Directors
 - Supervisors
 - Managers
 - Project leaders
 - Building managers
 - Production and plant engineers
 - Energy advisors
- And other people whose contributions to energy efficiency and cost-saving activities can help your organization fulfill its commitment in this regard.
